The Swedish government, together with the Akelius Foundation, has donated 1.2 billion SEK to children in Gaza via UNICEF.

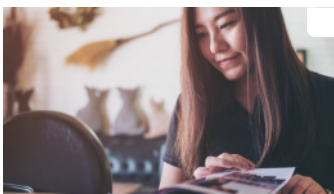

SEK 400 million comes from the government, while the Akelius Foundation, founded by real estate billionaire Roger Akelius, accounts for SEK 800 million.

"A school for 250 students, teachers and food for five years costs around a couple of million kronor, depending on tents or permanent buildings. Akelius is contributing 400 schools," writes Kerstin Engström, chairwoman of the Akelius Foundation, in a press release.

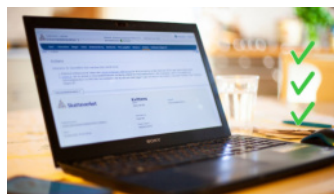

According to the press release, the donation is the largest ever in Sweden in terms of humanitarian aid.

In addition to the 400 million to UNICEF, the government is giving an additional 155 million to other UN agencies operating in the Gaza Strip.
